Occupational diseases are often thought to be uniquely and specifically related to factors in the work environment, examples of such diseases are pneumoconioses. However, in addition to other factors (usually related to lifestyle), occupational exposures also contribute to the development or worsening of common respiratory diseases, such as Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD), Asthma and Lung Cancer. Keeping in mind the above objectives, Department of Physiology, RIMS, Raipur is now organizing NCORD 2017 on 21st & 22nd April 2017.

The aim of this Conference is to provide a clear idea about importance & information of occupational respiratory diseases and their effects on morbidity and mortality in the general population which is provided by different sources of varying quality.
